

PARROT AARAKOCRA

Parrot Aarakocra are a festive, peaceful and charismatic race that are common in warmer environments deep in thick rainforest or remote islands. A vibrant and diverse flock of avians these Aarakocra are naturally peaceful and tend to enjoy conversation and music making them a great addition to any group or flock. These avians naturally assume the best in those that they meet but are far from defenseless if the need rises to fight.

FEATHER FIESTA

When a group of parrots gather around sources of food, water or shelter these avians can take over the area rapidly. A gathering of these Aarakocra can become very loud to the point some magic users claim not even Silence spells can quiet the assembly. Some find this colorful crowd annoying and even claim their nature gets the best of them resulting in destructive pecking of property, food and the occasional loud inter flock quarrel. But others find the vibrant array of colors, song and almost synchronous flight a wonder to behold. Outsider opinions aside Parrots and even some other species of Aarakocra can be drawn to these random gatherings. It's a great time to be social with the parrots exchanging song, ideas and even valuable information.
